

Budget proposal makes progress

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Bush said Thursday he could trade a 1 percent increase in taxes on affluent Americans for a deep cut in capital gains taxes but that it was "a waste of time to try to push such a deal through a divided Congress."

President Bush called on lawmakers to get the budget battle and come up with a $500-billion deficit-reduction package that contains neither element. In the Ways and Means Committee, Democrats on the committee were well into writing an alternative budget that would not raise taxes on rich Americans but would raise them higher than Bush has said he can accept.

The committee's chairman, Dan Rostenkowski of Illinois, said the package would "restore fairness to the tax system."

He said the Democrats would meet Friday to decide whether the package will also reduce the capital gains tax rate, but if it does "it'll be a lot richer" than the administration's plan.

Congressional committees are working toward the goal of finding a billion dollars in spending cuts to offset tax increases before the Oct. 19 deadline when the latest emergency spending authorization expires. The package would raise Medicare premiums and taxes on alcohol, cigarettes and gasoline are likely to be included.

"We believe we have made progress," Senate Democratic Leader George Mitchell said after a meeting with Republican Leader Bob Dole and members of the Finance Committee.

Trying to end two days of confusion surrounding the president's position on taxes, the White House laid out — but said it wouldn't push — a plan that would combine higher taxes on the 500,000 or so wealthiest Americans with lower capital gains rates for people who profit from sales of stocks, real estate and other investments.

Bush's hypothetical package would increase the top rate on the highest-income people from 28 percent to 31 percent, ease the top rate from 33 percent to 31 percent for some 4.5 million slightly less well-to-do taxpayers and chop the rate on capital gains from 28 percent to 15 percent.

That would do away with the "bubble" in the tax code, under which some upper middle-income taxpayers now pay a higher rate than the wealthiest.

The White House held out the proposal as the outer limit of Bush's willingness to compromise on taxes. Of some Democratic proposals to raise the top rate to a flat 33 percent, Bush said, "I cannot accept that."

U.S. planes grounded; Gulf pilots learn safety

Associated Press

Britain's foreign secretary said Thursday the international coalition against Iraq is a vital force for world peace, and Saddam Hussein must be told force will be used if Iraq doesn't pull out of Kuwait.

The U.S. Air Force, meanwhile, grounded all training flights in the Persian Gulf region for 24 hours to discuss air safety with pilots. The order followed separate accidents this week in which 12 U.S. servicemen died.

The grounding was declared Wednesday at noon, Saudi time, and lifted at noon Thursday, said Pete Williams, the chief Pentagon spokesman.

A group of about 360 Western evacuees from Iraq and Kuwait landed in Britain on Thursday in the first such flight in nearly three weeks. Most of the passengers were Americans, and many were children.

The Americans and Canadians on the flight were to leave Friday for Raleigh-Durham International Airport in North Carolina, said Andrew Varney, Gatwick airport's director of public affairs.

While Westerners continued to flee occupied Kuwait with tales of low food supplies and looting by Iraqi troops, international pressure grew against Saddam to withdraw from the oil-rich emirate he invaded and annexed.

Speaking at the annual conference of the governing Conservative Party in Bournemouth, England, British Foreign Secretary Douglas Hurd urged the world to remain united against Iraq's occupation.

Jews rally at Wailing Wall

Associated Press

JERUSALEM — Thousands of Jews, many carrying guns, danced at the Western Wall to end the Sukkot festival Thursday, answering a government call to assert control over Judaism's holiest site after bloody riots there.

"The large crowd gathered here today shows that nothing in the world can break us," Parliament Speaker Dov Shilansky told about 35,000 people squeezed into the cobblestone plaza in front of the wall, more commonly known in the West as the Wailing Wall.

Ultra-orthodox Jews carrying sacred Torah scrolls stood side by side with less observant countrymen waving Israeli flags.

Hundreds of riot police, backed by soldiers, were deployed at the Wall and the adjacent Temple Mount. On Monday, at least 19 Palestinians were killed and 140 wounded when police fired at rioters stoning Jewish worshippers at the site.

Many Palestinians living in the nearby Moslem Quarter stayed indoors as policemen escorted singing and dancing Jews through the area's narrow alleys to the Wall. Police posted at the gates of the Old City frisked Palestinians, and many were turned away.

"We will prevent young inciters from reaching the area," said Jerusalem's police commander, Arie Bibi.

Many worshippers carried submachine guns slung over their shoulders or had pistols tucked into their belts.

"Thousands of people came in answer to those who stoned us. They should learn that Jerusalem is indivisible," Religious Affairs Minister Avner Shaki told the crowd.

Kuwaiti leaders discuss democracy

Associated Press

NICOSIA, Cyprus — The Persian Gulf crisis has unleashed forces seeking political reforms in the feudal gulf states, including an extraordinary effort to discuss the future of Kuwait if it is freed from Iraqi occupation.

Kuwait's exiled rulers have invited 450 prominent citizens to a conference in Saudi Arabia this weekend to consider the future shape of a free Kuwait.

The government is eagerly — and uncharacteristically — soliciting the attendance of the Western press at the event.

Crown Prince Sheikh Saad al Abdullah said the agenda will range from future defense arrangements to the rights of Kuwaiti citizens and foreign workers.

"The basic topic is liberation," Kuwaiti Information Ministry spokesman, Feisal Mutawaa, said in a telephone interview from the conference site in Jiddah.

Sheikh Saad called for a new social covenant between the rulers and Kuwaiti citizens.

The covenant follows widespread criticism by Kuwaiti exiles of the domination of the al-Sabahs, Kuwait's deposed ruling family, over their nation's important financial and political institutions.

The debate is raising questions about the mandate of other gulf rulers, who have so far rejected political parties and participatory democracy.

"No government, anywhere in the world, would fail to take heed of changing situations by beginning to adjust, whatever the prevailing situation," Sulaiman Mutawaa, minister for planning in the government-in-exile and Feisal's cousin, said in London this week.

After his Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait, Iraqi President Saddam Hussein struck a responsive chord among the Middle East's masses by claiming Kuwait was run by a selfish reactionary regime whose family hoarded vast wealth for its own benefit.

Gov. Scott Matheson lies in state Wednesday in the Capitol Rotunda. Thousands of mourners filed past the casket paying their last respects.

Matheson buried; services Saturday

TRACY KRUMPEN
Universe Staff Writer

The American flag on BYU campus flew at half-mast Thursday in remembrance of former democratic Governor Scott M. Matheson, who died Oct. 8 from bone cancer.

Matheson was buried at 1 p.m. Thursday at the Parowan City cemetery, next to his parents, at a state family service. Thousands of mourners paid their respects to Matheson at a public in-state viewing Wednesday at the state capital building from 4 to 9 p.m.

Bill Stowe, director of facilities at the state, said, "He was very respected by all political parties. Many times he took individuals on issues that were not necessarily political, but what was the best interest of the state."

Matheson was said to have had a close, quality relationship with those he worked with him.

"He was a man of his word," Stowe said. "Respect, that's why we're all here today."

BYU sent a flower arrangement in the shape of a Y for the viewing. Eight armed forces personnel, representing all four branches of the services, were on hand. One officer and two guardsmen guarded the casket. They rotated every 30 minutes so that by the end of the viewing, all four branches of the armed forces would have been represented in guarding the casket.

Stowe said, to his knowledge, this was the first time that the state has honored a deceased former governor in this way. The public viewing shows the quality and honorary dignity of Matheson and his leadership ability, he said.

The former governor's son, Scott Matheson Jr., said he and the rest of the family knew that Matheson enjoyed representing the state and felt it appropriate to let the public pay their respects in such a way.

Stowe said the first hour of viewing was only for family and close friends. He said this gave the younger members of the family a sense of connecting Matheson with the state capital.

Earlier this week, Matheson told newspapers that he thought his father's death might have been a result of the open-air nuclear testing conducted in the 1950s. Multiple myeloma is the type of cancer that claimed Matheson's life, and it is caused by radiation.

Stowe believes the media is making more of a conclusion concerning Matheson's cause of death than the family.

A public memorial service will be held for Matheson Saturday at noon at Symphony Hall in Salt Lake City.

Section of University Ave. scheduled to reopen Monday

By SUE N. WANJ
Universe Staff Writer

University Avenue will reopen on Monday, according to the Utah Department of Transportation. The section of road from 1280 N. to 1700 N. has been closed for construction since early summer.

The road was scheduled to reopen on Nov. 15, but the project is being completed one month early, said Alan Elis, a road engineer for Western Quality Concrete Inc. in Mapleton.

"The road has a complete reconstruction," Elis said. Pavement, sidewalks and gutters are replaced, he said. The road has also been widened, said Ruth Ruthann, a road inspector for UDOT.

The reconstruction done on the road has the potential to last for 30 years, Elis said. "The layers of the road are nine inches thick."

A special tape known as stripping, a product that lasts five times longer than asphalt, was used on the road. Asphalt was used on the road before the construction, Elis said.

Concrete was also used on the road. Concrete is preferred because it is more durable than asphalt, since asphalt has holes in it, Ruthann said.

"Concrete is better because it is expensive, superior and has a longer duration," said Melvin Christiansen of Spanish Fork, another engineer.

Ruthann said, "I feel sorry for the businesses around where the reconstruction is being done, but the road will reopen soon."

This section of University Avenue is scheduled to reopen Monday. Business owners have long been annoyed with the construction because they say up to 40 percent of their customers have been lost since the road closed during the summer.

"My parents' business has lost 35 to 40 percent of its customers since August, when reconstruction began on this road," said Allyson Stevenette, daughter of Ted and Audrey Stevenette, owners of Stevenette's Malt Shoppe, a restaurant on University Avenue.

This is the busiest time of the year, when students are back, but they are not selling anything because the road is blocked, Stevenette said.

"Our business deals with the older population," said Dixie Daily, an employee of Petersens Medical Supply and Pharmacy.

The older customers are used to coming into the store a certain way, Daily said. The business has lost a minimum of 25 to 30 percent of its customers, she said.

Soviet rocket explodes over launch pad

MOSCOW — The Soviet Union's most advanced booster rocket, which an American specialist believed was carrying a spy satellite, exploded seconds after liftoff last week.

The blast nearly destroyed the launch pad and may complicate Soviet efforts to sell space hardware to the West.

The official Soviet news agency, Tass, reported for the first time Thursday that the Zenit booster "broke up" at the Baikonur space port in the Central Asian republic of Kazakhstan on Oct. 4.

Tass said no one was hurt and that a commission is investigating the accident. The three-sentence dispatch did not identify the payload or give any other details. It also did not say why the explosion was not reported for a week.

James Oberg, an American aerospace engineer and expert on the Soviet program, said he believes the payload was a satellite the Soviet military hoped to use for electronic intelligence gathering.

A spokesman for the Soviet space agency, Glavkosmos, told The Associated Press that one of two launch pads the Zenit uses was "nearly totally destroyed" and that the satellite was ruined.

Nikolai Semyonov, head of Glavkosmos' international department, did not say how the satellite was to be used.

He said further Zenit launches have been put on hold.

House approves obscenity compromise

WASHINGTON — The House of Representatives on Thursday rebuffed conservative demands for strict new anti-obscenity curbs on the National Endowment for the Arts, and voted overwhelmingly to let the courts decide whether federally subsidized arts projects are obscene.

After an emotional five-hour debate, the House approved a bipartisan compromise sponsored by Reps. Pat Williams, D-Mont., and E. Thomas Coleman, R-Mo., that would penalize grant recipients if they are subsequently convicted of violating obscenity laws.

Passage of the Williams-Coleman measure on a 382-42 roll call vote signaled a major reversal of congressional sentiment on the politically explosive issue of federal support for art that some lawmakers consider offensive.

A year ago, in the heat of a controversy over support for exhibitions of works by photographer Robert Mapplethorpe and artist Andre Serrano, Congress approved explicit anti-obscenity restrictions on the endowment.

Mexican wins Nobel Prize in literature

STOCKHOLM, Sweden — Octavio Paz, who explored the Mexican character and the universal themes of love, death and loneliness in lyrical poetry and impassioned essays, won the Nobel Prize in literature Thursday.

The Swedish Academy awarded Paz the prize for his "exquisite love of poetry, at the same time sensuous and visual," and for his wide international perspective.

It also cited Paz for his essays on Mexican society, calling him "a lodestar in the tide of opinion."

Paz's views have angered the left and the right in his homeland, and he was dumped by leftists who felt he turned on their cause.

Paz, 76, said he was "very, very surprised" at being selected.

"Poetry is not a very popular art form these days, but it's an essential part of human life," Paz said in New York, where he is inaugurating a Mexican art exhibit at the Metropolitan Museum of Art. "Poetry is the memory of a country, of language."

"The prize is a sign that the Spanish and Latin American literature is in good health," he added.

Court orders trustee to sell Brian Head

SALT LAKE CITY — A reorganization plan for Brian Head Enterprises has been approved by the U.S. Bankruptcy Court, and the trustee has been directed to sell the beleaguered southern Utah resort.

Trustee Rene' L. Meyer has until May 31, 1991, to sell the resort.

Brian Head sought protection under Chapter 11 of the U.S. Bankruptcy Codes on Nov. 6, 1986, declaring debts totalling more than $20 million on assets of about $10 million, said company controller Darren Hatch.

The resort, located east of Cedar City, has continued to operate but has suffered the past couple of years because of poor snow conditions, he said.

Hatch said he believes weather conditions are ripe for a productive season.

Regardless, he said negotiations are continuing with "several" prospective buyers, and he believes Meyer will finalize a sale around May 1. Under the reorganization plan, the major secured creditors have been named resort shareholders. If the sale does not come through, they will be allowed to exercise their rights as shareholders beginning May 31.

Rich food diet is killer for Americans

WASHINGTON — The "killer diet" of rich foods favored by Americans makes them more susceptible to cancer, and it's too late to change after the disease develops, researchers say.

"The man on the street is eating himself to death with a killer diet of high calories and high fat," Dr. Henry T. Lynch, a researcher at the Creighton University School of Medicine said Thursday. "They are more vulnerable to cancer. We know that from epidemiological studies."

But precisely how diet can affect the development of cancer cells is still unknown. Lynch said that despite claims by some unconventional cancer treatment centers there is no conclusive, clear evidence that any specific food or diet provides an absolute protection from cancer.

Lynch, a speaker at a meeting of the American Institute for Cancer Research on the effects of vitamins and minerals on cancer, said all that scientists can say for sure now is that a high-fiber, low-fat diet is a "prudent" precaution against cancer.

This is based on studies of populations in which the occurrence of cancer is lower than in the U.S. and in countries that have adopted a western diet.

Conflicting reports on coffee continue to confuse doctors

By DALLAS SCHOLES
Senior Reporter

Coffee continues to be an enigma to medical research. No one seems to know exactly how coffee affects the human body, and recent reports only add to the confusion.

"The coffee dilemma has not been solved," said Dr. Lynn Lyons of the University of Utah's Department of Family and Preventative Medicine.

Lyons said he and other Americans "didn't know quite how to reconcile" the conflicting reports about coffee.

In 1981, a report released in the New England Journal of Medicine linked coffee consumption with cancer of the pancreas. Another report, released in this month's journal, said caffeinated coffee did not contribute to heart disease.

Lyons has been repeating the pancreatic study. "That (original) study has been very controversial," he said. Since he intends to publish his findings, he was unable to comment on it at this time.

The latest study, named the Health Professionals Follow-up Study, was a survey of 45,589 doctors. The study determined that decaffeinated coffee — not caffeinated — contributes to heart disease.

According to Dr. Gary D. Friedman, in the Banbury Report on Coffee and Health, any study on coffee and coronary heart disease must consider other contributing factors that often accompany coffee drinkers.

Lyons said the only advice he has is to weigh the risks.

"If you are worried about drinking coffee, cut down coffee consumption or cut it out," he said.

Keith Perkins, director of BYU Religious Studies electronic texts, said the position taken by The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints is "where the Word of Wisdom says hot drinks, it means tea and coffee."

In a computer search of conference talks over the past 20 years, Perkins said he was unable to find a reference to the word caffeine.

"The Lord has never said it is caffeine that makes coffee prohibited," Perkins said. "However, many people assume that's what it means."

Unless you really enjoy reading manuals get a Macintosh

Tim Moses
Computer Science
Vanderbilt University

"Macintosh practically eliminates the need to keep manuals next to my computer, because—regardless of which program I'm using—I can open, close, save, and print files in exactly the same way. And you can't say that about any other computer."

"Today lots of other computers are attempting to look and work like a Macintosh, but it's just not possible. They're too fundamentally different to begin with. This may sound a little strange, but comparing a Macintosh to other computers is like comparing apples to oranges. You can squash the orange into shape and paint it to look like an apple, but underneath the makeup, it's still an orange. "It's funny—I work at the Vanderbilt computer store and I've seen lots of people switch from other computers to Macintosh, but I've never seen anybody with a Macintosh switch to another computer."

Why do people love Macintosh?

Cougars to charge Rams

BY DAVID FARNWORTH
Sports Writer

Winding off a bye that gave the football team an extra week to prepare mentally and physically for the loss to the University of Oregon, the Cougars will face Colorado State Saturday.

The contest will help decide the way tie for the No. 1 spot in the Western Athletic Conference. The Cougars are 3-0 in WAC play and 4-2 overall, while the Rams are 2-0 in WAC and 4-1 overall. Colorado State is tied with Wyoming, which is 3-0, for the top slot in the WAC.

According to BYU quarterback Mattmer, the bye came at a perfect time. "The rest did us good. We have some people that were kind of tired up. I'm ready to play again and know everybody else is."

Head Coach LaVell Edwards also wound the bye. "It was a very productive week for us. Aside from the injured players, we worked on technique and got back to our basics," he said.

Edwards was on the list of injured players with a hand injury, but according to the Heisman candidate, he is in throwing condition. "I don't think I had any pain in it. This last game was in a cast, but it's alright and the injured player will not be returning to the Cougar line-up for the remainder of the season. Outside linebacker Jared Leavitt suffered a dislocated disk in his neck during the game. The doctors performed a particular surgical procedure in his neck. They got in and found out it was worse than they anticipated," Edwards said.

The first major line-up change of the season moved junior Scott Giles from redshirt to starting position to replace Leavitt.

Tight end Chris Smith will also be able to play this week. Smith was questionable for the game after undergoing arthroscopic knee surgery the Monday after the Oregon game.

Injuries have also plagued the Rams. "Tony Alford, our running back, has a sore foot and I'm not sure whether he will play. Craig Jersild, our strong safety, will be down and I don't think he will play," said Rams Head Coach Earl Bruce.

The Rams will rely on the running game, Bruce said. "We've got to be able to run because that's what we do. So we're going to try to run and see what happens," he said. In the win against Utah last week, the team ran for 315 yards led by Brian Copeland, the WAC's leading rusher.

Giles - from redshirt to starter

BY DAVID FARNWORTH
Sports Writer

Imagine this scenario. You are on the couch watching the BYU football team play the University of Oregon. Two weeks later you are starting on defense for the Cougars.

Although this scenario may sound far-fetched, for the Cougars, a redshirting junior from Provo, it is reality. A pause of an injury sustained by Jared Leavitt in the game against the University of Oregon, the outside linebacker position was left vacant and Cougar coaches decided that Scott Giles would abandon his redshirt and start in Leavitt's place.

Head Coach LaVell Edwards said he would try to redshirt him unless something happens. Then we would have to bring him in and redshirt him simply because we lack the depth. It's unfortunate for Jared, but a good opportunity for Scott," said Coach Edwards.

Edwards said a redshirt to a starting position is not unusual. "When they need a player, they have to do what they need to. In the case of Giles, they made a good decision," he said.

Giles was told he would be starting against Colorado State last week after the team had learned of the severity of Leavitt's injury. The news came as a surprise to the Cougars.

"It all happened so sudden. Within one week I went from redshirting to starting. I'm not really disappointed, but I was a little when I realized I missed five games of eligibility. But right now I'm happy and excited because I have eight more games to play," he said.

Giles began his college football career as a walk on at Snow College. He worked his way up the ladder and played some games his freshman year. After that year, he served a mission for The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints in Washington D.C.

Upon returning from his mission, Giles was offered a scholarship to continue playing for Snow College. After starting his sophomore year, he graduated from Snow and was offered a scholarship to BYU. He planned on redshirting his first year at BYU in order to have two more years of eligibility.

Since he has attended practice with the linebackers this season, Giles did not have a hard time learning the formations.

BYU strong safety Norm Dixon said, "He is a great player and has been doing a good job picking up the defense. We communicated and picked it up automatically. He covered when he had to cover."

Giles feels confident about learning what he needs to know on defense. "I played the defense during fall and spring and it's starting to come back. I think I'll be ready," Giles said.

WAC could expand

Soccercats host USC

BY TREBERT MAYER
Sports Writer

The BYU Soccercats try to break a losing streak as they host the University of Southern California (USC) at 7:30 p.m. The game is part of the weekend's four-team Geneva Soccer Classic.

The game is a rematch of last year's win in Provo and also the Cougars' first since two losses last season in Arizona.

On the road we just really fell apart," said BYU Head Coach Dave Bluff. "I'm hoping we can put together a good performance against USC. We are a lot at home in two years."

Bluff said the Cougars will try to attack six to eight times per game. After retrieving the ball in the USC offense on the field, the Cougars' forwards will wait for their forwards to get going, then kick the ball deep in the field to help the forwards beat the defense to the ball, he said.

Butcher, USC's captain, leads the Trojans while Coach Jose Dedios is in Spain on family business.

"I want to keep the game closer," Butcher said. "I want to keep it out of BYU's running game. Our guys like to play long ball, but we'd like to slow them down to shorter passes."

Butcher, who played in last year's game, said he was impressed with the BYU soccer program.

"We're excited to play in front of such a large crowd," he said. "BYU has three times the fan support we do."

Saturday night the Cougars play Biola University from Los Angeles. Biola's fifth-year head coach, Matt Orr, said his team is ready for BYU.

"We're coming on strong. We'll match up pretty good. It'll be a good spectator game," Orr said.

The fourth team, Whitworth College, from Spokane, Wash., plays Biola at 5 p.m. Friday and USC Saturday, also at 5 p.m.

Whitworth College, currently 25th in NAIA polls, was once ranked this season as high as fourth.

Basketball try-outs Monday

The line-up for the men's varsity basketball team may already have been decided, but junior varsity positions will be filled when tryouts begin Monday at the Marriott Center.

Head Coach Rob Cuff said that anyone who wants to try out as long as they are not used up their eligibility. "The try out should know that there are no scholarships for JV players," he said. "There is the possibility of a walk-on, Cuff said."

Cuff encouraged anyone who wants to sign up at the basketball office, but they can just show up Monday at 1 p.m. in the Marriott Center gym dressed down to play." Cuff said. Practices will last one or two hours and continue through Friday.

Anyone trying out must have a physical before the initial practice Monday. Before getting a physical, students can get a form which needs to be filled out by the examining physician. Forms are available in the Athletic Training Office, 169 SFH, said Gaye Merrill, assistant athletic trainer.

John Hansen who also coaches the team said the team plays junior college teams in the area such as Dixie, Snow and College of Southern Idaho.

Condemnation of Israel by U.N. still uncertain

Associated Press

UNITED NATIONS — A U.S. initiative in the Security Council to condemn Israel for using deadly force against Palestinians ran into opposition Thursday over PLO demands for a tougher resolution.

The Security Council failed to reach the approach of the United States and Britain with that of the Palestine Liberation Organization, the non-aligned movement, during two days of intensive U.S. lobbying and marathon negotiations Tuesday night and Thursday morning.

"We have a couple of issues still to be settled," U.S. Ambassador Jeane Kirkpatrick said. "Representatives ended their talks at 4 a.m. Thursday. The issues remain."

David Hannay, the British ambassador and October president of the Security Council, said the U.S. and Britain were still in a "BC" radio after leaving a meeting Thursday night with Kirkpatrick, but he said he did not think if we fail to get an agreement tomorrow (Friday) that would be very, very unsatisfactory. I think tomorrow is the time when we must have to have a vote. . . . I think we've reached the end of a long negotiating process. We ought to be ready to make a decision tomorrow."

U.S. agreement to condemn Israel, after Monday's killing of 19 Palestinian demonstrators by police in Jerusalem, was hailed as a major shift in public policy toward Israel. The U.S. government commonly shields the Jewish state from condemnation by exercising its veto in the council.

But consultations collapsed as compromise efforts failed. Informal talks went on, but no formal meeting was scheduled Thursday.

More consultations were expected Friday, but it was not known if a meeting and vote would take place.

The Security Council has debated the killings since Monday. But the 15 council members cannot agree on a common approach in a resolution of condemnation that would be adopted unanimously, without a U.S. veto.

Orem approves amendment for new shopping center

By GREG F. BROWN
Universe Staff Writer

Plans to build a new shopping center on 1300 South in Orem cleared their first hurdle when the Orem City Council approved a master plan amendment Tuesday night.

The center will be located next to the new R. C. Willey store.

It is planned to house three large stores and three smaller stores.

Several residents at the meeting voiced concerns about the increased traffic the center would bring to the area.

Fred Johnson, 1446 South Main Street, said, "We are not against the plan, but we do feel that there are some potential problems to be considered."

He presented a petition with the names of 36 area residents expressing concerns about the project.

Van Gaffney, 1456 South Main Street, said he was concerned with the increase in traffic.

He said he was especially concerned about semitrucks in an area with children.

Dee Livingood, representing a potential contractor, presented a study that would minimize the traffic on Main Street.

Livingood said the semitruck traffic that would service the shopping center represented only about 1 percent of the traffic in the area.

Council member Norm Woodhouse told the residents their concerns were unwarranted.

He said he felt the plan presented was the safest alternative.

Councilmember Keith Hunt said he could not support the plan because he did not feel the developer had sufficiently studied the impacts.

"I'm not all that impressed with the traffic study, and you (Livingood) didn't resolve all the issues," Hunt said.

Hunt voted against the amendment.

Trucks and traffic have had to detour around construction for the new Joseph Smith Building. On Campus Drive, which has been closed for over a week while workers laid a new utility line, will be reopened by Monday. The road is not scheduled to be closed again.

Campus road to reopen by Monday

The road will open no later than Monday, he said. Construction of a utility line forced officials to close South Campus Drive for more than a week, said Sgt. Jeff Vest, a traffic officer.

Stratton said, "South Campus Drive will not close again because of construction on the new Joseph Smith Building unless something unforeseen occurs."

South Campus Drive is an important route for vehicles. The new utility line crosses South Campus Drive.

English faculty knows ABCs

MANETTE CARBINE
Universe Staff Writer

BYU's English faculty will still be able to fill hapless English students' heads full of red ink and do it with a conscience.

English faculty member Kristine Hansen preserved the honor of the word by spelling the word ptomaine correctly, winning the English Society spelling bee Thursday afternoon.

Hansen said she is very happy to have maintained the credibility of the English faculty because she is composition coordinator for the English Department, responsible for teaching the English 115 teachers.

The 15 competitors, who were randomly drawn from a hat, waded through words like cirrocumulus, halucinogen, halitosis and blasphemous. The tie-breaking word, when the ranks were narrowed down to Hansen and Jennifer Wadsack, 21, an English major from Chatham, N.J., was fluoroscope.

Royal Skousen, an English faculty member and one of the spelling bee judges, said at the beginning of the contest, "All English speakers misspell words. The only ones who don't are illiterate."

Skousen said the contest would be run under national spelling bee rules, and under those rules there are age limit requirements.

USA Today's Best College Student Competition — USA Today, in cooperation with several associations of higher education, has announced a competition to identify the nation's best college students. Sixty undergraduate student will be named to the 1991 All-USA Academic Team. Twenty, first team members will be invited to receive their awards at a ceremony in Washington D.C. and each first team member will receive a $2,500 cash award. Any full-time undergraduate student is eligible but must be nominated by a faculty member familiar with the student's work and an administrator. Selection criteria are designed to find students who excel in scholarship and leadership roles on and off campus. A student's outstanding original academic or intellectual product is weighed most in the judge's decisions. The judges will be influenced by the student's ability to describe their outstanding endeavor in his or her own words. The judges will not accept an author's work, an artist's painting or a composer's music, but they will rely solely on the student's ability to describe the effort in writing, supplemented by recommendations from a nominating professor and three other persons of the nominee's choice. For application forms come to 350 MSRB. Deadlines for application is Nov. 30.

Continuous Improvement For Increased Productivity Awards — Sponsored by BYU Alumni, this student manuscript contest is to encourage student involvement in applying the concept of continuous improvement for increased productivity in business and other organizations. Values disregarded, speaker says

By CHAD G. DAYBELL
Universe Staff Writer

The U.S. Constitution is on the brink of destruction because of the disregard of the fundamental values outlined by the country's founding fathers, said a speaker at the weekly Thursday night meeting of the American Study Group.

Steve Pratt, speaking on the topic entitled "Law Without an Anchor" at the Utah County Building, said early Americans were anchored to the three fundamentals of religion, morality and knowledge, but he said society is no longer anchored on these values.

"We are currently undergoing an open assault on the anchor of the American value system," Pratt said. "Today's schools do not teach values to our children."

Basing his presentation on information found in the book "The Making of America" by W. Cleon Skousen, Pratt said an idea developed within the justice system in the 1930s that justice should be based on social doctrines rather than values.

"Under Supreme Court Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes, justice began to be based on social doctrines and biological hypothesis," Pratt said. "God's law was abandoned, and man-made law was followed."

In support of his statement, he quoted Holmes as saying, "I see no reason for attributing to man a significance different in kind from that which belongs to a baboon or a grain of sand."

Steve Pratt speaks to the American Study Group Thursday at the Utah County Building. He talked about disintegrating values.

An essay by Mark Cannon entitled "Crime and the Decline of Values" shows this trend to stray from moral values, Pratt said.

"A study of third-grade readers (textbooks) reported that references to obedience, thoughtfulness and honesty began to disappear after 1930," Cannon said.

Pratt compared his grandfather's second-grade school reader to a 1990 second-grade school book from a Salt Lake school district. He read an entry from the older book, which emphasized morally religious values while the more recent book told the story of a father levitating his wife above a table at their daughter's birthday party. "A comparison of every story in my grandfather's reader with the stories in the recent one will produce similar results," Pratt said.

Can you do the Simpson shuffle?

The Simpson family made an appearance Thursday at University Mall performing skits and dances to people of all ages. The Simpsons' broad appeal comes from their wry insight into today's family life as they experience the trials of living in the 1990s, said a Fox spokesman.
